The London Library

The London Library is a registered charity dedicated to the advancement of education, learning and knowledge by the provision and maintenance of a lending library in London embracing every aspect of the Arts and Humanities. Founded by Thomas Carlyle in 1841, it has already played a central role in the intellectual life of the nation for over 175 years.

Our mission is to support scholarship, creativity and cultural enrichment by acquiring the most important published works in the arts and humanities in each generation and discarding almost nothing from our shelves. To date the Library has amassed an extraordinary collection of over one million volumes dating from the 16th century to the latest publications.

A high proportion of the printed collections is maintained on open-access shelves where the volumes may be freely browsed, with most available for loan. A growing electronic library complements the printed collections.

Membership is open to all and we currently have just over 6,500 members. We seek to provide a prompt, reliable and courteous service, meeting and exceeding the expectations of users. Our highly-gualified and specialist staff operate in a spirit of keen collaboration with members, engaging with their individual research and reading interests whether those interests are professional or personal.

The Library is self-financing (supported by membership subscriptions, donations and bequests) and self-governing, with a committee of Trustees elected by and from the members.

Collection Care Department

The Collection Care department is responsible for the preservation of the Library's collections, ensuring that the Library's unique accumulation of book and non-book material is maintained for the enjoyment of present and future generations. There are three principal strands to the department's work: conservation, binding administration and the practical and strategic management of the book stacks. Within these areas, the department is responsible for environmental monitoring and control, emergency planning, good housekeeping, collection security, condition reporting, archival boxing and the provision of surrogates. The department has an active volunteer programme and is committed to raising staff and member awareness of collection care issues.
